

Global Community Café Web Version

GOOD NEWS STORY #3

from Canada

Today, we have a story about a group of Canadian families who are trying to stay connected by having dinner together. Even now, most restaurants are still closed because of the coronavirus and people cannot go out to eat like they used to. However, some families in Coquitlam have decided to spend more time with their neighbours by dining outside their homes every Friday night. While sitting apart in their own driveways, the families eat, chat with each other and have a good time. They are also helping local restaurants by ordering take-out food. Even when we have to stay socially distanced, I think building and maintaining a sense of community with our neighbours is really important.

Reference

Strandberg, Diane. "Coquitlam families find community in group take-out food gathering." Tri-City News, 28 Apr. 2020, <https://www.tricitynews.com/news/coquitlam-families-find-community-in-group-take-out-food-gathering-1.24125700>. Accessed 1 May. 2020.